

"This year we are anticipating a huge turnout for summer reading, and we are currently planning all the great activities," said Linnea Sheldon, Community Relations and Communications Manager for the Worcester Public Library. "Summer reading helps keep children excited about reading, and the events and incentives help keep them interested and engaged. It's not just for the kids either. We have programs for all ages, so we encourage our entire community to participate."

The Summer Reading Program is a fun and exciting way to keep the community reading. Special health and fitness-related programs will be held all summer, and readers of all ages are encouraged to track their reading online.

The adult program will offer classes on health and wellness, including learning about Superfoods, Tai Chi, yoga, and hula hoop, to help you on your fitness journey.
